Art Unit: 1724

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. § 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(d) the invention was first patented or caused to be patented, or was the subject of an inventor's certificate, by the applicant or his legal representatives or assigns in a foreign country prior to the date of the application for patent in this country on an application for patent or inventor's certificate filed more than twelve months before the filing of the application in the United States.

Claims 35-51 are again rejected under 35 U.S.C. § 102(d) as being clearly anticipated by Russian Patent No. 2,163,840 C1. The invention was first patented by the Applicant or his legal representatives or assigns in a foreign country (i.e. in Russia on March 10, 2001) prior to the date of the application for patent in this country (i.e. on May 3, 2001) on an application for patent filed more than twelve months (i.e. on September 30, 1999) before the filing of the application in the United States. Applicant should note that since the reference is silent as to any special temperature or pressure requirements needed to produce the disclosed material, one of ordinary skill in the sorbent art would at once envisage forming the reference material at normal pressure and temperature conditions (i.e. atmospheric pressure and room temperature).

Applicant's arguments filed November 23, 2005 have been noted and carefully considered but are not deemed to be persuasive of patentability. Applicant argues that the Russian patent fails to suggest forming the carbonaceous mixture "under conditions that yield no less than 10% nanotubes." It is pointed out, however, that since the reference material is formed under the same conditions as is Applicant's recited material, as explained above, this reference material must inherently have the same percentage of nanotubes in its mixture as does Applicant's recited material.

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

Art Unit: 1724

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
